When you answer the questions on this page think about situations at work, at school, at home, and with friends, but always think about situations where things are going well for you and you feel good about yourself.

| 1. I enjoy things most when I am  |   |  |
|---|---|--|
| helping others do what they want to do                                    | getting others to do what I want to do  | doing what I want to do without having to rely on others                           |
| 2. Most of the time I am apt to be  |   |  |
| a feeling person who is quick to respond to other people's needs          | an energetic person who is quick to see opportunities and advantages              | a practical person who is carefunot to rush into things before Iam ready   |
| 3. When I meet people for the first time                                  | I am most apt to be   |  |
| concerned with whether or not they find me a likeable person              | actively curious about them to learn if there is something in it for me           | politely cautious until I've learned what they might want from me                  |
| 4. Most of the time I find myself being                                   | •   |  |
| the nice one on whom others can generally count on to lend a helping hand | the strong one who supplies the direction for others                              | the thinking one who studies things carefully before acting.                       |
| 5. I feel most satisfied when   |   |  |
| the major decisions have been made by others and how I can help is clear  | others can count on me to makethe major decisions and tellthem what to do | l've had time to study a major decision and determine my own best course of action |
| 6. People who know me best see me as a                                    | a person who can be counted on  |  |
| to be trusting of them and loyal to them                                  | to be full of ambition and initiative   | to be unswerving in my convictions and my principles                               |
| 7. It is most like me to  |   |  |
| do the best I can and trust in others to recognize my contribution        | take the lead in developing opportunities and influencing decisions               | Be patient, practical and sure of what I am doing.                                 |
| 8. I would describe myself as a person w                                  | ho most of the time is  |  |
| friendly, open and who sees some good in almost everyone                  | energetic, self-confident and one who sees opportunities others miss              | cautious and fair and who stands by what I believe to be right                     |
| 9. I find those relationships most gratify                                | ing in which I can be   |  |
| of support to a strong leader in whom I have faith                        | the one who provides the leadership others want to follow                         | neither a leader nor a follower but free to pursue my own independent way          |
| 10. When I am at my best, I most enjoy.                                   |   |  |
| seeing others benefit from what I have been able to do for them           | having others turn to me to lead and guide them a give them purpose               | being my own boss and doing things for myself and by myself                        |
| TOTALS  |   |  |
| 1   |   |  |

When you answer the questions on this page, think about situations at work, at school, at home, and with friends, but always think about situations where things are going wrong for you and you are in conflict with others.

| 11. When I run into opposition to what I  | am doing, I am most apt to   |  |
|---|--|--|
| give up my position in order to avoid creating conflict                                       | become forceful and exert my position and opinion                        | become extra cautious and check my position very carefully             |
| 12. If I decide to want to overcome som   | eone's opposition, I will try to   |  |
| change what I am doing to showthem that I see it their way                                | find holes in that person's argument and press for the strengths in mine | appeal to the person's sense of logic and fair play                    |
| 13. In getting along with difficult people  | , I usually  |  |
| find it easier to go along with their wishes for the moment                                   | consider them to be challenges to be overcome                            | respect their rights and insist that they respect mine                 |
| 14. When someone disagrees with me, I   | tend to  |  |
| give in and do it their way unless it is very important to me                                 | challenge them and try to win the argument                               | detach myself from the situation until I am certain of my position     |
| 15. When someone openly opposes me, I   | usually  |  |
| give in for the sake of harmony and rely on that person's sense of justice to treat me fairly | consider it a battle and set out to win                                  | try to withdraw from the fray and focus on my own interests            |
| 16. If I'm not getting what I want from a   | relationship, I am most apt to   |  |
| Remain optimistic that things will work out   | become more forceful and persuasive in my communication                  | abandon the relationship and look elsewhere for what it is that I want |
| 17. When I feel that others are taking adv  |  |  |
| turn to others and ask for advice and solutions   | assert my position and fight for what I feel I am entitled to            | state my position clearly and insist that it be respected              |
| 18. When another person insists on havin  | g their way, I tend to   |  |
| go along with them to avoid confrontation   | propose counter arguments and try to get them to change                  | allow them that freedom unless it interferes with my interests         |
| 19. When others openly criticize me, I an   | n most apt to  |  |
| deflect their anger and pacify them   | vigorously challenge them to prove that I am right                       | become doubly cautious and analyze their accusations                   |
| 20. When someone has plainly abused my  | y trust or confidence, I tend to   |  |
| feel that the person has done more harm to themselves than to me                              | get angry with them and think of ways to even the score                  | analyze what when wrong and how to avoid any repetition in the future  |
| TOTALS  |  |  |
|   |  |  |